Introduction

1. The Working Group on the Universal Periodic Review (UPR), established in accordance with Human Rights Council resolution 5/1 of 18 June 2007, held its fifth session from 4 to 15 May 2009. The review of Viet Nam was held at the 10th meeting on 8 May 2009. The delegation of Viet Nam was headed by H.E. Mr. Pham Binh Minh, First Vice-Minister of Foreign Affairs. At its meeting held on 12 May 2009, the Working Group adopted the present report on Viet Nam.

2. On 8 September 2008, the Human Rights Council selected the following group of rapporteurs (troika) to facilitate the review of Viet Nam: Burkina Faso, Canada, and Japan.

3. In accordance with paragraph 15 of the annex to resolution 5/1, the following documents were issued for the review of Viet Nam:

(a) A national report submitted / written presentation made in accordance with paragraph 15 (a) (A/HRC/WG.6/5/ VNM /1);

(b) A compilation prepared by the Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights (OHCHR), in accordance with paragraph 15 (b) (A/HRC/WG.6/5/ VNM /2);

(c) A summary prepared by OHCHR, in accordance with paragraph 15 (c) (A/HRC/WG.6/5/ VNM /3).

4. A list of questions prepared in advance by Argentina, Canada, Czech Republic, Denmark, Hungary, Latvia, Norway, Sweden, The Netherlands, The United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland was transmitted to Viet Nam through the troika. These questions are available on the extranet of the UPR.

I. SUMMARY OF THE PROCEEDINGS OF THE REVIEW PROCESS

A. Presentation by the State under review

5. H.E. Mr. Pham Binh Minh, First Vice-Minister for Foreign Affairs of Viet Nam stated that Viet Nam attaches importance to UPR national report, regarding it as a United Nations member's obligation and an opportunity to comprehensive and participatory review of the human rights achievements and future guarantee measures. A special task force composed of members from more than 20 national legislative, judiciary and administrative departments was established. In order that the report was as comprehensive, objective and authoritative as possible, consultations were held with dozen of non-governmental organizations (NGOs) and academic institutions. Viet Nam has also learnt from international experience and received cooperation from international partners in many ways. The UPR report and nearly 100 pages of annexes provide detailed information on the human rights implementation.

6. Viet Nam pursues a consistent policy of respecting and ensuring human rights as enshrined in its Constitution. This policy stems from the recognition that human rights are the universal values of mankind, including the right to national self-determination which is upheld in today's core human rights conventions.

7. The policy of respect for human rights of Viet Nam is also rooted in Viet Nam's thousands of years of history and culture. Fifty-four ethnic groups have been living together in peace on the Vietnamese soil without any ethnic conflict. The Vietnamese people love peace and humane values while staying open and receptive to diversity and outside values, including the big religions like Buddhism and Christianity that have come to and thriven in Viet Nam since very early. The will of Viet Nam also represents the aspirations of the Vietnamese people throughout the colonial rule that deprived them of the most fundamental freedoms and the war of national defense following Viet Nam's regained independence in 1945.

8. The people's support stands behind the success of the independent Viet Nam in overcoming enormous ordeals and hardships and in leading the comprehensive renewal process recognized by the international community. This support indeed demonstrates the enjoyment by the people of their human rights.

9. Viet Nam attaches great importance to building a comprehensive legal system to guarantee and promote human rights. About 13,000 laws and by-laws have been enacted or revised since 1986. Draft laws and ordinances of the National Assembly are subjected to people's comments via the mass media. The Constitution and legal normative documents stipulate the rights and measures to guarantee civil and political human rights in Viet Nam in conformity with international treaties. Viet Nam's efforts in this regard have been commended by the United Nations and international partners.

10. The monitoring and supervising system and the law enforcement system in Viet Nam, which are constantly reformed in accordance with the principle of a State ruled by law, encompass all State agencies and various organizations and people's participation. The National Assembly supervises all activities of the State. All its Q&A sessions versus Government members are live broadcasted.

11. The Master Plan on Administrative Reform for 2001 – 2010 is aimed to make the administrative system cleaner, stronger, more democratic, professional, modern and effective in the people's interest. All Government agencies have their own inspecting mechanism in their respective areas of responsibility. The judicial system serves as the means for protection of justice and human rights, for enforcement of the law and the fight against crimes and law violations.

12. Various organizations, the mass media and citizens' indirect and direct participation through their representative bodies or legal mechanisms are the important components of the machinery of human rights protection. The people take voluntary and active part in running for elections, nominating and voting for representatives from different social strata into the National Assembly and People's Council of all levels. Many raise their concerns and questions to their representatives related to the functioning of the State agencies. Q&A sessions of the National Assembly are closely watched by the people. Viet Nam has about 380 nationwide mass associations and numerous associations at the local and grassroots levels. There are 18 nationwide sectoral trade unions and 6,020 local trade unions. Some 600 foreign NGOs are currently operating in Viet Nam.

13. The mass media has been growing rapidly in diverse forms and with rich contents, becoming important forums for the people and contributing actively to the process of renewal, the fight against corruption and other vices. The number of print press agencies and publications now reach 700 and 850 respectively, tripling the 1990 figure. Over 15,000 licensed journalists are working in Viet Nam. Regular internet users account for nearly 24 per cent of the population, which is higher than the average Asian figure of 18 per cent. Presently 95 per cent communes of extreme difficulties have radio stations, including those broadcasting in ethnic minority languages. According to a latest report of the International Telecommunication Organization (ITU), Viet Nam is among the top 10 countries having the highest IT growth rate in the 2002 – 2007 periods in terms of the level of coverage, usage and skills.

14. Religious and belief activities are now a vibrant social feature. There are over 20 million followers of different religions, including world's major ones. Over 80 per cent of the population has a belief. The United Nations Day of Vesak was organized in Hanoi in 2008 with the participation of Buddhists and dignitaries from 74 countries and territories. Viet Nam will host the World Buddhist Summit in 2010. A Holy See delegation comes to Viet Nam annually to exchange views on religious issues of mutual interest and acknowledges the positive developments in the religious situation in Viet

15. The ethnic minority people participate in an increasingly equal manner in the country's socio-political life. The 12th National Assembly (2007-2012) includes 87 deputies of ethnic minority, accounting for nearly 18 per cent of the total deputies. Ethnic minority people are present in the People's Council at provincial, district and communal levels and assume high positions, including highest portfolio, in State agencies and varied organizations.

16. Viet Nam has attained significant achievements in promoting women's rights against the indicators of the Convention on Elimination of All Forms of Discriminations against Women (CEDAW). It has been rated by The World Bank and Asian Development Bank as the country most rapidly narrowing the gender gap in the past 20 years in Asia. Vulnerable groups, such as children and people with disabilities receive special attention from the State, society and family. Children and people with disabilities have been enjoying better care and protection in various fields, able to express views on issues of their interest in line with the Convention on the Right of the Child (CRC), the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities (CRPD). Viet Nam was the second country in the world and the first in Asia to sign CRC. It signed CRPR in December 2007.

17. Protection and promotion of economic, social and cultural rights in Viet Nam have made significant progress. Efforts to deal with social problems has brought about tangible, positive changes. People's cultural life is advanced. After 20 years of renewal, per capita income has increased five-fold and the percentage of households living under the national poverty line decreased from about 60 per cent to about 13 per cent. Viet Nam has been recognised by the United Nations and many development partners as one of the countries with most impressive achievements in poverty reduction. As claimed by the United Nations, Viet Nam had attained or surpassed many of the MDGS and was capable of attaining them by 2015.

18. The percentage of poor ethnic minority households has been reduced by an average of 3-5 per cent per year; 90 per cent to 95 per cent of school-age children are enrolled and all districts have secondary schools. Thirty ethnic minority groups have their own languages and scripts; Ethnic minority languages are used for textbooks at ethnic minority primary and secondary schools, in broadcasting TV programmes and radio programmes for the ethnic minorities.

19. The UPR Report of Viet Nam has described in detail lessons drawn from achievements in protecting and promoting human rights. These include placement of the humanbeing in the center of development, the close relationship between protection of human rights and national independence and sovereignty, the importance of maintaining political stability, promoting economic development in parallel with expanding social welfare, and enhancing the people's awareness of and capacity to exercise their rights.

20. These accomplishments also derive from Viet Nam's foreign policy of openness and increasingly active participation in regional and international human rights mechanisms and activities, including those of the United Nations General Assembly, Human Rights Council and the Asia-Europe Meeting (ASEM). Viet Nam is now working with other countries in the region to establish a human rights body of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN). Viet Nam also has technical cooperation and human rights dialogues with Australia, Norway, Switzerland, the United States, the European Union (EU) and other countries and international organizations.

21. A number of special rapporteurs have visited Viet Nam and the Government has recently extended invitations to five other special procedures to visit Viet Nam

22. Viet Nam is conscious of the shortcomings and difficulties and challenges to be addressed. The legal system of Viet Nam still lacks coherence while remaining overlapped and even contradictory in some areas. The development of the legal system has not matched the changes in life, leading to misinterpretation and difficulties in enforcement, affecting efforts to ensure constitutionality, feasibility and transparency. The effectiveness of information provision, education and awareness enhancement in relation to the law remains limited. The system of law enforcement needs to be strengthened. A segment of public servants remain unfamiliar with the human rights treaties to which Viet Nam is a party and occasionally have insufficient knowledge of government policies and the law.

23. These shortcomings have objective causes, including the fact that Viet Nam remains a poor country that has to cope with the aftermaths of war, such as supporting the many victims of bombs, mines and Agent Orange/dioxin. The population is scattered throughout the country, including in remote and hash areas with varying languages, customs and habits. The international environment with major economic upheavals, the outbreak of pandemics, environmental degradation and transnational crimes, is another factor. Viet Nam is still victim of hostile activities like terrorism, sabotage, acts to destabilize the country and infringe upon national security and territorial integrity. There are subjective causes, namely the slow pace of change in some policy areas, the poor quality of implementation and the shortcomings of institutional and human capacity.

24. A number of priorities were identified in the UPR National Report of Viet Nam: continue to attach importance to poverty reduction, healthcare, development of social safety net, human resource development, expansion and improvement of the education and training system; effective implementation of the Master Plan for Public Administration Reform, Strategy for the development of the legal system and the Judicial Reform Strategy; take specific steps to realize these priorities, to acceding some additional human rights treaties and to strengthening cooperation with regional and international human rights mechanisms.

25. Viet Nam is to build a strong country with prosperous people and a just, democratic and advanced society. It is committed to the protection and promotion of democracy and human rights as both the goal and the driving force of renewal.

26. Viet Nam hopes that the working session will be a manifestation of cooperation and constructive dialogue, in line with the objectives for which the UPR mechanism was created by United Nations member states to achieve.

B. Interactive dialogue and responses by the State under review

27. During the inter-active dialogue, statements were made by 60 delegations. Additional statements by sixteen delegations which could not be delivered during the dialogue due to time constraints are also posted on the UPR extranet when available.* A number of delegations praised the national consultation held for the preparation of the UPR report and the comprehensive presentation. Reference was made to Viet Nam's struggle for national independence in the context of the realization of their right to self-determination. Support was expressed for ongoing reforms in various areas, including the judicial reform and with particular reference to the Doi Moi policy. A number of delegations praised Viet Nam's rapid economic growth and social development with particular emphasis to Viet Nam's effective poverty reduction strategies, and it was highlighted that Viet Nam is one of the first countries to fulfill the MDG 1. Significant achievements in the area of economic, social and cultural rights were highlighted. Viet Nam was praised for its results in improvement of basic education, the right to health, including reduction of infant mortality rate, the right to food, and the right to education. Positive remarks were made on progress in gender equality, promotion of women's rights, and protection of the rights of persons with disabilities. Reference was made to that Viet Nam is a party to a number of international human rights instruments.

28. Noting the commitment to promoting the right to self-determination, Algeria recommended a) continuing to uphold the promotion of human rights and fundamental freedoms, particularly for the exercise by people under foreign occupation to their right to self-determination. Praising the poverty reduction, Algeria recommended b) continuing to implement poverty reduction strategy to further lower the rate of poverty, and c) sharing best practices and experience in this field with interested countries, inter alia by contributing actively to the strengthening the South-South cooperation in this regard (MDG 1 – poverty reduction), and d) continuing to implement credit-for-jobs projects and to promote labour market development. Algeria recommended that f) due attention be given to reconciling the universal values of human rights with the specific circumstances of Viet Nam, and that Viet Nam e) continue fulfilling its obligations under the international treaties to which it is a party and considering acceding to the CAT.

29. Venezuela noted the great efforts to overcome the devastation suffered as result of the struggle for national liberation. It appreciated the effective reduction of poverty, with a poverty rate of 58.1 per cent of the population in the 1990s having been reduced to 13.8 per cent in 2008. As part of priorities attached to the right to development, it recommended that the Government share its successes and good practices with other countries on the guiding principles of solidarity and socialism.

30. Russian Federation welcomed preparation of national report through wide consultation and recommended that Viet Nam a) continue to involve the appropriate political and social organisations in work to encourage and promote human rights. It highlighted the support to the poorest including orphans and persons with disabilities, and recommended b) continuing with its very successful and social oriented economic policy, including by for example providing properly drinking water to poor house wood and to special hardship regions, and c) participate actively in international cooperation to encourage and protect economic social and cultural rights. Russian Federation urged d) sharing the positive experiences with other countries. It highlighted results achieved in gender equality and recommended e) continuing efforts to inform the wider society about the laws concerned and about the rights of women in general, and to widely use the mass media to raise awareness of gender equality and to publishing the appropriate papers and documents in ethnic minority languages.

31. Thailand noted that one of Viet Nam's challenges was to strike a right balance between the imperatives of promoting economic development and the need to enlarge civil liberties. Thailand recommended a) continuing its poverty reduction efforts as a means of laying the groundwork for the further enhancement of human rights of its people. It recommended b) providing and expanding human rights education and training for all relevant Government authorities to build capacities of officials, and ensuring effective implementation of the human rights related laws.

32. The Philippines noted that Viet Nam shall ratify the Convention against Transnational Organized Crime and the Palermo Protocol. It commended Viet Nam's support for the establishment of the ASEAN human rights body and asked whether Viet Nam had plans to establish an independent national human rights institution. The Philippines recommended a) sharing experiences in promoting agricultural productivity and sustainability, local development and good governance with other developing countries. It recommended b) to further increase the use of ethnic languages in schools and the mass media. It recommended c) continuing programme for building affordable housing for low-income families aimed at promoting broader enjoyment of the right to adequate housing by 2020.

33. Lao People's Democratic Republic underlined that since unification in 1975, after over 30 years of post war reconstruction, the country had overcome tremendous obstacles and successfully implemented the renovation policy. It recommended that Viet Nam a) continue to maintain and strengthen the economic, political and social model of Viet Nam to guarantee the full participation of the population in the public and security affairs; b) share its experience and best practice and especially in how to achieve the MDGs with other countries; and c) continue to bring down poverty in urban and rural areas along with the maintenance of peace, stability and the protection of environment to boost-up the country's socio-economic development, industrialisation and modernisation to achieve the MDGs.

34. Cuba referred to the successes of Viet Nam based in a system freely chosen by the people, and the protection of the rights of ethnic minorities. Cuba acknowledged in particular the results achieved in protecting the rights of persons with disabilities, many of whom were direct victims of the unbridled aggression including napalm bombing and use of notorious chemical agents. Cuba recommended the Government to a) continue with its efforts to promote and protect the rights of persons with disabilities, and share its experiences in this regard; and b) continue to take measures to provide education and health care, especially in mountainous areas and the population of ethnic minorities and with their involvement.

35. Canada recommended that Viet Nam a) increase the independence of media from the State, including by allowing privately-run media; b) bring its press laws into compliance with article 19 of the ICCPR; c) adopt a whistleblower law so that those who identify corruption are protected from prosecution or harassment; and d) adopt access-to-information legislation. Canada noted that laws are sometimes applied to restrict the freedom of association. It recommended that Viet Nam e) reduce the use of security laws that limit public discussion about multi-party democracy or criticism of the government, including by bringing security and propaganda laws into compliance with the ICCPR; f) reduce the length of prison sentences for non-violent crimes; g) register all individuals detained under security laws, and make this information publicly available; and (h) provide people detained under security or propaganda laws with fundamental legal safeguards, including representation by legal counsel of their choice throughout the proceedings and a public trial. Canada recommended that Viet Nam i) issue a standing invitation to all special procedures of the Human Rights Council.

36. China noted that Viet Nam encourages balance development of the economic sectors, gives priority consideration to education, health, infrastructures, human resources, poverty reduction, and vulnerable and disadvantaged groups, and has drastically improved people living standards. China recommended that Viet Nam a) takes active measures to close the gap between rich and poor and between the mountainous and urban areas; b) continue to help ethnic groups in raising awareness of their rights and responsibilities so that they can improve their living and better enjoy their rights.

37. Myanmar noted the discussions towards establishing an ASEAN human rights body and Viet Nam's openness in acknowledging its existing human rights challenges. Myanmar recommended further intensifying its engagement with the international community, especially with developing countries to exchange and share its best practices relating to the efforts on strengthening the rule of law and socio-economic development.

38. Indonesia recommended that Viet Nam a) continue to improve its legal system and give particular attention to its human rights laws and regulations in order to make them more mutually cohesive. It appreciated Viet Nam's commitment to the process of establishing a regional human rights mechanism as mandated by the ASEAN Charter. Indonesia observed that Viet Nam is already party to several core human rights instruments, and recommended Viet Nam to b) ratify other core human rights conventions.

39. Singapore noted that Viet Nam has come a long way in rebuilding after decades of war. Concerning poverty eradication, the proportion of people below the national poverty line has been cut from over 60 per cent in 1990 to 13.8 per cent in 2008. Regarding the rights of the child, Viet Nam was the first in Asia and second in the world to sign the CRC. Singapore commended Viet Nam's achievements and recommended to continue to improve the following areas: poverty eradication, rights of the child, women's rights, and rights of persons with disabilities.

40. The Democratic People's Republic of Korea (DPRK) appreciated a series of measures for human rights noting the achievements in the economy and other sectors. DPRK recommended a) continuing ongoing efforts for the betterment of the disadvantaged groups in society, including people with disabilities; b) furthering efforts to engage all social and political organizations of the country in the promotion and protection of human rights; and c) sharing with other countries its experiences in poverty reduction and agricultural development.

41. Norway noted aims to limit the use of capital punishment and recommended that Viet Nam a) complete it promptly by reducing the scope of crimes subject to the death penalty. Norway recommended that Viet Nam b) give individuals, groups and organs of society the legitimacy and recognition to promote human rights as well as to express their opinions or dissent publicly, and c) adopt appropriate measures to disseminate widely and ensure full observation of the United Nations Declaration on Human Rights Defenders. Norway recommended that Viet Nam d) ensures that the media can operate freely and independently, and e) ensures that the Press Law, in amending it, complies with the ICCPR and that the legal framework allows the existence of privately owned media.

42. Noting the right to development, Malaysia recommended to that Viet Nam a) speed up the law reforms and public administration programmes aimed at deepening and broadening democratic norms, principles and standards; b) consider accession to the United Nations Convention on Transnational Organised Crime and its protocol to prevent, suppress and punish trafficking in persons, especially women and children; and c) consider accession to the ILO Forced Labour Convention.

43. The Islamic Republic of Iran encouraged and recommended a) taking concrete measures for further promotion and protection of economic, social and cultural rights, including the right to development for better realization of MDGs. It recommended b) continuing its judicial reform towards a healthy, strong, democratic and efficient judicial system, which is necessary as an enabling condition for the promotion and protection of human rights. Iran recommended c) cooperating with the international community and neighbouring countries particularly in the fight against trans-border organized crimes, and fight against trafficking in women and children. It recommended d) strengthening efforts in fighting against corruption, which negatively affects the enjoyment of human rights of everyone.

44. Brazil commended the Government for encompassing civil society in efforts and recommended that the Government a) establish a permanent independent human rights monitoring body; b) review the list of crimes for which death penalty is imposed, with a view to abolishing capital punishment; c) enhance women's access to health care, in particular to sexual and reproductive health services; and d) accomplish progressively human rights goals as set up in resolution 9/12.

45. Sweden welcomed the efforts to improve access to health and education and recommended that Viet Nam a) take further measures to prevent violence and discrimination against ethnic minorities. Sweden noted from the national report the more than 20 million internet users in Viet Nam and recommended b) steps to ensure that full respect for the freedom of expression, including on internet, is implemented in current preparations for media law reform. Sweden recommended that Viet Nam c) step up efforts to enable an early ratification of the CAT. Sweden recommended that Viet Nam d) take further action to enforce and implement the laws that have been passed, and to take measures to ensure that women are informed of their rights.

46. Noting challenges in connection with opening to the market economy, Benin recommended a) adopting various measures for prevention and early diagnosis of transmissible diseases and pandemics notably HIV/AIDS by giving priority to vulnerable groups, particularly national minorities, the poor, and sex workers (prostitutes). It recommended b) continuing efforts aimed at the promotion and protection of human rights in Viet Nam.

47. Netherlands recommended that the Government a) ensures that press laws are in compliance with article 19 of the ICCPR, b) authorise independent and privately-run newspapers and magazines; and c) lift restrictions on internet usage such as filtering and surveillance. It welcomed steps towards the ratification of the United Nations Convention against Corruption. The Netherlands noted the generous number of invitations, and recommended that Viet Nam d) considers issuing a standing invitation to all United Nations special procedures.

48. Australia welcomed the increasingly frank bilateral Human Rights Dialogue between Australia and Viet Nam. It recommended that Viet Nam a) consider strengthening press freedom protections contained in the 1999 Press Law to support these objectives; and that b) continues to work to ensure key pieces of national legislation, including the 1999 Penal Code and 2003 Criminal Procedures Code are consistent with Viet Nam's international human rights treaty commitments. Australia welcomed Viet Nam's commitment to consider accession and recommended that Viet Nam c) accede to the CAT in a timely manner.

49. Yemen noted the recorded rapid economic growth, which enabled strengthening sectors as education, health, the infrastructure, human resources, and poverty reduction. Yemen recommended that Viet Nam share its experiences and lessons learned with other developing countries.

50. Cambodia appreciated the overall efforts and progress made by the Government in the field of economic, social and administrative reforms field. It recommended that Viet Nam should a) continue its sustainable efforts and share its experiences and best practices in the area of poverty reduction with other developing countries, especially through the program of south-south cooperation, along with its participation in international efforts of promoting the right to development. It recommended to b) continue efforts in its current economic and political platform that aim at protecting and guaranteeing people's rights, namely religious freedom, and continue and enlarge social security network for the poor, vulnerable and other disadvantaged groups, for improving their well-being and their participation of social associations and social groups into social security network.

51. Whilst commending Viet Nam for its recent progress in the area of freedom of religion, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland remained concerned that implementation of legislation remains patchy, particularly at the provincial level. It recommended Viet Nam a) to engage substantively with international experts on the development of its media law, and works to increase the independence of Vietnamese media institutions; b) to continue to built policy dialogue between government and independent civil society organisations; c) to engage in dialogue with international experts on legal developments, including on the review of its Penal Code to allow less scope for open interpretation of these provisions by judges and courts; and d) to continue to undertake comprehensive training programmes for local officials, monitor progress on implementation of legislation and e) re-engage with the United Nations Special Rapporteur on religion.

52. Egypt noted the rising economic growth, a sharp decline in poverty levels and progress made in the areas of education, gender equality and the right to food. Egypt recommended a) continuing efforts aimed at improving social security in the country, especially at this time of economic and financial crises; b) continuing efforts to improve all political as well as economic, social and cultural rights in conformity with the universally agreed human rights standards and norms; and c) devising plans and strategies enabling it to reach out to remote areas and members of the population and hence improve their living conditions and ensure the protection of their rights.

53. Libyan Arab Jamahiriya noted that Viet Nam was among the first to implement a long term plan for persons with disabilities, enabling them to be part and partial of the society. It stated that notwithstanding efforts, there are a number of poor people and persons with disabilities who suffer from discrimination. It recommended that Viet Nam make the necessary efforts to improve the specific conditions of persons with disabilities in order to improve their living conditions, stability and integration within society.

54. Japan noted that it has for many years assisted Viet Nam in developing the legal system and expressed its intention to continue to assist. Japan recommended that Viet Nam a) continue to make further efforts to advance the human rights of socially vulnerable people, including ethnic minorities, persons with disabilities, women, children, persons with HIV/AIDS, and victims of human trafficking; b) develop its domestic legal system and ensure the appropriate implementation and execution of the law towards the implementation of the international human rights instruments to which Viet Nam is a party.

55. Highlighting Viet Nam's excellent results in, inter alia, poverty reduction, Mexico recommended a) taking necessary measures to establish a national human rights institution in accordance with the Paris Principles; b) enhancing its cooperation with the United Nations Special Procedures, particularly extending an invitation to visit the country for the Working Group on Arbitrary Detention; and, with a view to complementing the initiatives taken by the Government concerning ethnic minorities; c) favourably considering the ratification of the ILO Convention No. 169 concerning Indigenous and Tribal Peoples in Independent Countries.

56. Azerbaijan noted the legal basis existing in Vietnam to protect and promote children rights. It recommended that the Government a) continue its efforts in the field paying inter alia particular attention to the vulnerable groups such as children, women, persons with disabilities and ethnic minorities. It asked whether Viet Nam envisaged establishing a national system to receive, monitor and investigate complaints on child abuse. It noted that patriarchal attitudes and domestic violence still remains a challenge. It referred to that a number of reports of Viet Nam to the treaty bodies are overdue, and asked about the reasons. Azerbaijan recommended that Viet Nam b) consider ratifying the International Convention on the Protection of the Rights of All Migrant Workers and Members of Their Families and Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities; and c) establish a national human rights institution in compliance with the Paris Principles.

57. Sri Lanka stated that Viet Nam more than any other country has stood up for the human rights of its own people and throughout the world by fighting for national independence, freedom and social progress. It noted that nothing is more precious than independence and freedom, which the people of Viet Nam have demonstrated. Sri Lanka commended the national report of Vietnam and urged that the 5 lessons contained in the national report be disseminated as widely as possible and recommended that they disseminate their rich experience globally as much as possible.

58. Noting that Viet Nam is faced with challenges in vocational training, improving natural disaster management and protection of vulnerable groups, the Syrian Arab Republic recommended a) continuing its efforts to meet these development challenges, achieve sustainable development and enhance the state capacities to protect rights and fundamental freedoms of all Vietnamese citizens; and b) sharing the five lessons included in its national report with developing countries.

59. New Zealand welcomed the commitment to strengthen cooperation and recommended that Viet Nam a) issue a standing invitation to all Special Procedures and, in particular, that it seeks visits by the Special Rapporteurs on freedom of religion or belief, freedom of expression, torture and violence against women. It recommended that Viet Nam b) permits independence of the media, improves its implementation Article 19 of ICCPR, and allows the establishment of privately-run media organisations. New Zealand was interested to hear what steps Viet Nam is undertaking to combat discrimination against women. It recommended that Viet Nam c) take steps to abolish the death penalty and increase transparency around its use; and d) establish a national human rights institution, in accordance with the Paris principles.

60. Austria referred to Article 120 of the Criminal Procedure code and asked if the Government is considering any changes. Austria recommended that the Government a) take concrete steps to effectively ensure that all persons deprived of their liberty are brought before a judge without delay. Referring to concerns about Decree No. 89/198, it recommended that the Government b) provide public information on how many detention camps by the police and military have in fact been set up and how many persons are detained therein; and c) ensure unhindered access to legal representation by persons detained in such facilities. Austria recommended to not only d) intensify its efforts in combating child prostitution, and also provide effective support to the children affected and sensitise its police forces to this problem in particular through adequate training courses.

61. Switzerland was carefully monitoring measures to deal with corruption. It noted that mass media play a crucial role and recommended that Viet Nam a) ensure that the review of the press law follows the international standards on this subject, particularly with respect of the protection of journalists. It recommended that Viet Nam b) revises its legislation on the death penalty to bring it into line with existing international standards on the subject, especially concerning transparency. Switzerland hoped that c) the land law passed by Viet Nam will be fully implemented, and urged Viet Nam d) to issue a standing invitation to all Special Procedures.

62. Bangladesh expressed that rapid economic progress, pro-people policies and ongoing legal reform will contribute to improvements. Bangladesh recommended that the Government a) share its successful development experiences in the area of poverty alleviation, agricultural reform, education and health care, with other developing countries; b) strengthen its efforts in generating social awareness on positive gender roles, targeting particularly alleviation of existing gender based disparities in education and labour market; and c) continue ongoing legal reforms, and seek technical assistance from relevant international partners, if deemed necessary.

63. Asking whether Viet Nam would accept a visit by the Special Rapporteur on the right to freedom of opinion and expression, Finland recommended a) allowing media to take its watchdog role in society and b) amending its Press Law to comply with the ICCPR provisions. Finland recommended c) repealing or amending its Penal Code to ensure that it cannot be applied in an arbitrary manner to prevent the freedom of expression. Asking whether Viet Nam would accept a visit by the Special Rapporteur on extrajudicial, summary or arbitrary executions, Finland recommended d) imposing a moratorium on executions immediately with the ultimate goal of abolishing the death penalty altogether.

Morocco recommended: a) reinforcing advocacy and information measures through specific human rights education and training programmes; b) continuing paying attention to equality of opportunities, and creating favourable conditions of people residing in rural and mountainous areas; c) taking supplementary measures to support access of minority children to education by helping them maintain and develop their traditions and languages; d) continue national efforts aimed at combat forced labour and trafficking in persons; and e) taking necessary measures to prevent, suppress and punish trafficking in persons particularly in women and children.

68. India noted that CRC welcomed national action plans on children and trafficking in women and children, and it appreciated acknowledgments of challenges including the rich-poor gap and urban-rural disparity. It recommended that the Government a) continue to pay special attention to the disadvantaged sections of the society, in particular the ethnic minorities and persons with disabilities, so as to ensure their fuller participation in the socio-political life of the country. It also recommended that the Government b) continue its efforts to preserve the language and culture of the country's ethnic minorities.

69. In responding to statements, the delegation of Viet Nam noted the Government's principle to guarantee social equality to allow all people to enjoy the benefits of development. The Government is determined to taking stronger measures, such as additional programme in areas with high ratio of poor households, vocational training for farmers, implementation of insurance and voluntary insurance, programmes on social housing for the poor, students, migrant workers, ethnic minorities, allocation of land for production, and provision of added resources for social safety from the state budget. The target is to bring the poverty rate below 10 per cent in 2010.

70. The delegation noted that international standards on the rights of employees and on trade unions is stipulated and protected in the Constitution and laws, and that Viet Nam has signed and ratified a number of ILO conventions. Vietnam's trade union has nearly 8 million members in enterprises of both state and private sectors, and is the legitimate representative body in protecting the interest of employees. Vietnam is studying the contents of the remaining conventions, including ILO conventions 87 and 98.

71. The delegation informed that Viet Nam will strictly enforce the provisions of the law on gender equality, law against domestic violence, which was adopted in 2006.

72. The delegation noted that Viet Nam is a unified country with 54 ethnic groups, 53 of which are minorities, making up nearly 14 per cent of the population. The equal political rights of the ethnic minorities are proclaimed in the Constitution, and any ethnic-based division or discrimination is forbidden. The proportion of ethnic minorities in the administration of all levels is on the increase. The delegation noted that nationalities enjoy equality in education and healthcare, and the cultural identities, language, scripts of all nationalities are preserved and promoted. Viet Nam builds houses for poor ethnic minority people, promoting education and builds boarding schools for ethnic minority students. Languages and scripts of the ethnic minorities are taught in their schools and public offices; The areas of ethnic minority people have seen rapid development and improved conditions, with places of worshipping and belief preserved and upgraded. The delegation acknowledged that ethnic minority areas still lag behind in term of development

73. On religious issues, the delegation stated that the State considers religion and belief a legitimate demand of the people, as proclaimed in the Constitution and legal documents. Viet Nam has 20 million followers of inter alia Buddhism, Catholicism, Protestantism and Islam. Religious activities as Vesak of Buddhism, Christmas and Easter of Catholicism and Protestantism and Ramadan of Islam are organized with the participation of hundreds of thousands of followers. Viet Nam has also allocated land for the religions to build worshipping places. Religious texts have been printed in ethnic minority languages, such as Bana, Ede, Jarai and Khmer.

74. The delegation informed that criminal code stipulated 44 offences subject to death penalty, and now reduced only 29 offences of death penalty; death penalty only apply to extremely serious crimes, such as drug trafficking, cruel murder to deter the criminals; at present the public opinion in Vietnam is not yet for the complete removal of the death penalty. The delegation also informed that in 2006, Vietnam revised the law on complaints and denunciation, which allows organizations and individuals to lodge lawsuits in the judicial court to review the decisions made by the administrative agencies related to the legitimate rights of the plaintiff.

75. The delegation informed that Viet Nam has enacted codes, laws and provisions to ensure social safety and strictly deals with acts of infringing into national security and social stability, including the 1999 Criminal Code and 2004 Law on National Security. It considered that the laws related to national security are in conformity with Viet Nam's socio-economic and political conditions as well as the international laws that Viet Nam has acceded to. The delegation noted that there is no so-called "prisoners of conscience" and no one is arrested for criticizing the Government; only those who violate the laws have to bear criminal responsibility.

76. The delegation stated that any violations committed by individuals, state agencies and law-enforcement officers shall be strictly dealt with in accordance with the law in force. Joining CAT is in principle in conformity with the policy and law of Viet Nam, which is taking speedy steps to join this Convention.

77. On the conditions of detention and reform of inmates and those subjected to temporary detention and investigation and interrogation, the delegation noted that all citizens have the right to complaints, and that in case of miscarriage of justice, those involved in the proceedings must compensate and even be prosecuted criminally. The delegation reaffirmed that Vietnamese law prohibits all acts of torture and there is no practice of torture or degrading treatment of law offenders and those under detention for investigative purposes. It also stated that there are no detention camps of the military or police in Viet Nam. Every year, the State grants special amnesty for the inmates with good conduct. In early 2009, 15,000 inmates were commuted and released.

78. Furthermore, the delegation stated that the Courts abide by the principles of equality, and that no one is guilty and punished, including being put under probation, until so found and sentenced by the court. It noted that judges and people's grand juries are independent and only abide by the law, and that Vietnamese law has strict rules on temporary arrest and detention. The delegation referred to an increased interest in judicial reform, which aims to make court hearings more democratic and transparent. The Courts have made order compensate in cash for 80 per cent of those making petition for remedy, and the rest is being settled.

79. The delegation referred to Constitutional provisions and that the rapid development of the press in Viet Nam testifies to the freedom of speech, freedom of press and the right to information. The press, inter alia, monitors the implementation of laws and is indispensable for combating corruption. The delegation stated that every citizen has the right to provide feedback for socio-economic development plans and programmes, and that many cases of corruption and wrongdoing have been detected and denounced by the people and brought to justice. With people's feedback, authorities have cancelled or adjusted many major construction projects. The Government has implemented training and re-training programmes for over 2,000 journalists, thus helping improve the quality and reliability of the media. The law stipulates that socio-political and professional organizations are allowed to publish newspapers, and a new draft Press law will consider allowing enterprises to publish newspapers.
